PROBE DEATHS OF MAN'S 3 WIVES

ANALYSIS IN HUB MAY RESULT IN EXHUMING BODIES OF FIRST TWO

New Bedford, Feb. 8.—Probe of the mysterious deaths of the three successive wives of Andre Charroux of this city, was begun today.

The stomach of Mrs. Charroux (third) was sent to Boston today for chemical analysis of its contents by Medical Examiner Magrath of Suffolk County, the northern district.

On the finding of the Boston pathological expert will depend, the police say, whether or not the body of Charroux's second wife, who died less than two years ago under practically the same mysterious circumstances as the third, will be exhumed.

And then there is a possibility that the remains of his first wife, Pilar, who died in July 1925, may be exhumed in the triple investigation.

SAVE BLIND WOMAN AND THREE OTHERS AT FIRE

Mrs. Mary A. Calderwell, 80, blind cripple, and three other women narrowly escaped death when trapped by flames today in their home at No. 33 Carver street, Watertown.

Fire started in the kitchen of the second floor suite, occupied by Mrs. Calderwell's son-in-law, John Kenney and his family. Kenney discovered the flames and carried his mother-in-law to the street. He rang in an alarm and rushed back to get his children out.

In the meantime the occupants of the third floor were trapped by the spreading flames. Misses Edith Calderwell, Mary C. Hall and Theresa Quackenbush were all cornered in one room when the firemen arrived. The three women screamed for help from the attic window.

Ladders were placed in position and led by Lieutenant William MacElroy the crew from Engine 2 assisted all three women to safety.

The occupants of the first floor, E. C. Bassett and family, escaped when the fire was discovered. Cause was undetermined. Damage was estimated at $3,000.

CLERGYMEN IN BOSTON FAVOR CONFESSIONAL

Almost without a dissenting voice, Boston Protestant clergymen today declared in favor of the Rev. Dr. Harry E. Fosdick's suggestion that the confessional should be revived in Protestant churches.

"The Catholic church has in the confessional an amazing instrument for spiritual healing," Dr. Fosdick declared at a meeting of the Greater New York Federation of Churches in New York.

He said he has utilized the confessional in his own church, the Park Avenue Baptist Church, New York, for six years, in "ministering to sick souls."

Here are opinions of some Boston Protestant clergymen on the suggestion:

R. I. DRY AGENT FLAYS ACTION OF MINISTERS

Providence, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—"If there is any failure in the prohibition law, it is due to your sort of people," said H. E. Goodnough, deputy prohibition administrator in charge of enforcement in Rhode Island, in addressing the Congregational ministers of this State today.

"The reason that you come to me and make a complaint against a liquor violator is because it is a personal irritation to you, otherwise you would not be interested," said Mr. Goodnough. "You 'uplift people' are not interested in the broader haste of prohibition.

"I can't get results in Rhode Island by coming to ministers. The arrest of an individual does not amount to much.

"You are not fighters—you think you are, but you are not, only to an extent.

"If just make these raids on saloons to pacify you. If I didn't do it you would hang me. In order to do it I have to take men off bigger cases simply to satisfy lay people who don't know what we are trying to do."

BUCKNER SAYS $224,000 WAS PAID DAUGHERTY

New York, Feb. 8 (I.N.S.).—Harry asserted was paid by Richard Merton, German financier, to King for putting the deal through.

Before Buckner began his address, opposing counsel and the court conferred in a move to speed up the trial by omitting unnecessary evidence presented at the first trial. This previous trial ended in a disagreement of the jury.

Buckner used a blackboard in reviewing his case, the court allowing him to do so over objections of Daugherty's counsel.

'I TOILED DAY AND NIGHT SO I COULD KILL HALLEN!' CRIES TURNER ON STAND

By BERT FORD
(Staff Correspondent of the Boston Evening American)

Portland, Me., Feb. 8.—In the hush of a tense courtroom, a hush rippled only by the occasional shudders of women, Benjamin H. Turner today described the prison horrors that made him kill James D. Hallen.

And Turner, with drama turning every word, told how he had come upon Hallen, with his brain seething in lust for revenge, and had shot him down.

Two thousand miles away, while in a foreign prison, "the man from Maine," with nails cutting his palms, told himself that Hallen must die for betraying him. Turner, in silence said, testifying in his own behalf at the opening of the defense.

"He dies.

"I reached that decision while in the Mexican prison in August, 1921," shouted the former University of Nebraska student, with dramatic gestures as he sat on the witness platform.

"That was my reaction after working and toiling, due to betrayal by a man whom I trusted as a father and who took my last cent from me."

Day and night he worked, Turner said, grimly, eschewing sports, giv-

IMMIGRANT LAW 'ORIGIN CLAUSE' REPEAL O. K.'D

Washington, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Repeal of the national origin provision of the immigration law was approved today by the House immigration committee.

The committee ordered reported a Senate resolution to defer for one year placing in effect the provision, together with an amendment proposing its outright repeal. The dependent would leave regulation of immigration upon the existing quota basis.

Under the provision which the committee proposes to repeal, the quotas of admissible aliens would be based on a percentage of the total number of immigrants of the respective nationalities who entered the United States between 1820 and 1920.

The existing quota arrangement gives these percentages upon the number of each nationality resident in the United States in 1890.

TRAIN 'HUGGER' HELD AS LYNN SLUGGER SUSPECT

After trying to bug a woman on a Boston to Lynn train, according to the police, a Boston man was taken into custody today as a suspect in the attacking of more than a score of North Shore women and girls.

Riot guns were issued to Swampscott policemen by Chief Walter Reeves as a means of quickly capturing men who molest girls, and a motor patrol will tour the streets of Lynn nightly, beginning tonight, under orders from Chief Burckes of that city.

Victims of a "Jack the Hugger," a sleeper and an accordionist were notified by Chief Burckes to go to Lynn police headquarters to try to identify the man taken into custody on suspicion today.

He was caught in a building in Central square by Traffic Officer Charles Humphrey after the woman left the train and hurried to report the alleged hugging attempt to the police.

As she was talking to Humphrey she saw the man enter a nearby building and the policeman followed him and caught him after a chase.

Woman Heads Maine Jury ~ Wife on Panel with Husband ~ At Hallen Death Trial

FIRST OF SEX THUS HONORED
Miss Gladys Jordan, brunette daughter of a Raymond, Me., physician, is the first woman to head a jury in the Pine Tree State. She will announce the verdict at the Benjamin Turner trial.

FIRST COUPLE TO SERVE TOGETHER ON JURY
Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Haskell of Windham, Me., are members of the jury that will adjudge Turner guilty or not guilty of the murder of James H. Hallen of Falmouth Foreside, Me., slain on the lawn in front of his home last September.

HOLDING THE DEATH GUN
Lieutenant Henry T. Fortune of the Portland police department is showing the gun with which the State alleges Turner killed Hallen which they say ended a long dispute.

"INSANITY" HIS DEFENSE
Benjamin Turner, "the man from Mexico," will plead temporary insanity, his counsel intimated in his examination of jurors. He is alleged to have travelled 3,000 miles to kill Hallen.

"WHILE I WAS TORTURED I VOWED HALLEN MUST DIE!" SAYS MAINE SLAYER

ing up any recreation, hardly sleeping at all to get enough and saving enough money to journey 3,000 miles from Mexico and his bitterness—to kill Hallen.

As Turner broke his sphinxlike silence, maintained since his arrest in September, and lifted the veil of mystery on his life he talked with the choice language of a college professor.

He gave emphasis to his words whenever he mentioned the name of Hallen, and at times sat transfixed as one in a trance, oblivious to all around him as he pondered on scenes which he shaped into testimony.

Not the faintest echo of contrition in word or tone was manifested for the murder by the confessed slayer.

In most intimate detail he described the tortures endured while one of five hundred Mexican prisoners in the room of an old convent that had been converted into a prison.

Women spectators shuddered at his description.

The State rested when court opened today and Turner was called to the first of five witnesses sworn for the defense.

He traced his boyhood career and his student days, when, he said, taking life was so abhorrent to him that he never went fishing or hunting with the other boys in the village in Iowa where he was born thirty-six years ago.

He attended a denominational preparatory school in Lincoln, Neb., and entered the University of Nebraska in the Fall of 1913. Failing in his second year to attain the high standard of scholarship that he had set for himself, he suddenly left college and went West where he worked as a laborer.

LOVED HALLEN

Then he drifted into Mexico and worked as accountant and clerk settling mining and oil corporations. In 1921 he was arrested and put into jail.

In prison he remained almost two years under conditions which he claimed were indescribable.

Leading him to the point where he resolved to kill Hallen, Attorney Donnelly, senior defense counsel, asked:

Q.—You say you had come to trust Hallen as a father? A.—Yes, and gradually I developed an affection for him. When I gave him the two checks representing my entire savings, one for $500 and the other for $321, I trusted him implicitly. I trusted him as I would my own father.

Q.—What was your reaction when you found he had betrayed you? A.—It was a case of love turned to hate. "He dies." That's what I resolved.

Q.—When did you reach that decision? A.—While in a Mexican prison in August, 1921. I was young then. I couldn't believe it. How could a man of Mr. Hallen's culture and ability do such a thing to me. He had taken my last cent.

Q.—Why didn't you seek him immediately after your release from prison? A.—How could I? I didn't have a dollar.

Q.—Why didn't you hunt until you found him? A.—I had no funds.

Q.—But you had money to come here? A.—Yes, the forepart of last year, but not until then. I had decided on two things while in prison —to pay my debts and to pay Hallen.

Q.—After your release from prison while working to defray your indebtedness did you have any sort of amusement? A.—Not any! I had been interested before, especially tennis, but there was no time after with what I had set out to do. I worked all day and many nights to save. I wanted to pay all back and then reach Hallen.

Q.—Had you seen him between 1921 and 1926, the time of the shooting? A.—Yes, friends heard he was in Mexico in 1922 and he came to me in December. That was the last time. We had carried on correspondence for many months, but after I learned he betrayed me I stopped writing. In 1926, I received a telegram from home saying father was dying. I was overcome. I had been away from home twelve years and hadn't written home or to anybody. I wasn't in the mood to write. There was nothing good I could report. I thought after I got the telegram. "My father is dying without understanding me." I wasn't prepared to go home, but I went.

Asked to describe prison conditions in detail while he was incarcerated in Mexico City, Turner testified:

"The penitentiary was being repaired so we were placed in the city prison. In the penitentiary I had occupied a small cell with five pesos.

"At the city prison 2,000 prisoners were crowded into four large pens. The place was an old convent that had been converted into a prison. The penitentiary was a castle by comparison bad as the former was."

Q.—Where did you sleep? Were there any beds? A.—We slept on the floor and found it difficult to find space there in which to lie, so great was the number of prisoners. When I had money before Hallen took all I had I could get covering and food from the outside, but after I gave him all I had to exist on the prison fare which was unspeakable.

FORGED IN THERE

"The prison, especially the kitchen, was overrun with rats and vermin. I found evidence in my food. We could hear the rats scampering around at night."

Q.—What employment did you have? A.—None, we unsentenced men. We just paced the floor by day and tried to sleep at night.

Q.—Did any of the peons speak English? A.—No.

Q.—Were there any English speaking prisoners? A.—Few Mexicans spoke broken English. There was one American with us for a few weeks. He was the same kind of man as the man I killed, in forgery.

"One day when I was despondent a tall, fine-looking American came to me. He said, 'I am an American and a lawyer. This passport will tell you who I am.' He proved to be James D. Hallen. He impressed me as a man of culture, influence and ability.

"He said he had heard of my case from Americans at the hotel and was interested. He told me not to depend on aid or sympathy from the American colony, as they catered to the Mexicans. That remark made me skeptical, I hesitated.

"Hallen said he was going back to Maine that night and urged me to keep in touch with him as he wanted to help me. I had a Mexican lawyer who didn't help me. After some weeks I wrote to Hallen. He had printed his address on an envelope, 'James D. Hallen, Congress Square Hotel, Portland, Me.'"

When Turner rehearsed Hallen's first visit he paused and fidgeted in his chair. The name seemed to have a disconcerting effect every time he was called upon to mention it. He generally shouted it.

"I wrote Hallen a month or so after his first visit, asking him to recommend a reliable lawyer, and he wrote back that Lews Bannigan was the best man in Mexico City. I retained Bannigan, and he helped all he could, but the case began to drag and I became gloomy and impatient."

Q.—Did you confide in Hallen the first time you saw him?

"Yes. He impressed me as a man in whom one could confide. He suggested that the case be taken to Washington. He gave me the impression that he was connected with the State Department. I had only been in prison a few days when he called the first time.

"I wrote to Hallen about getting bail as a stage in my case was arriving known in the Mexican code as a reconstruction of facts. Hallen replied that he understood the Mexican procedure very well, but did not give me any definite advice.

"The next time he came to Mexico City he directed me to give him two checks for $700 and $500. I told him I had left in the bank only $837.

GAVE HALLEN ALL

"He directed me to give him that in two checks and promised to make up the balance of $1200 himself to carry out his plan to expedite my case. I gave him what he asked.

Q.—And that was all you had? A.—He took my last cent. He told me everything ought to be fixed up in two or three days. I remarked that perhaps it would be two or three weeks, but he assured me it would be much sooner than that. A few days later I was dumbfounded to see Hallen pushing his way through all those prisoners in our pen. The fact that he could gain admittance impressed me, as only guards and prison officials were permitted to enter. He told me how as going to another part of Mexico on a case which he had pending in the Mexican Supreme Court and assured me everything would be all right.

Q.—How old was he then? A.—About sixty, with smooth-shaven face and gray hair, a highly distinguished appearing man. He had often impressed me by his gentle manners. For example, whenever he entered the prison he would remove his hat while waiting for me. I remember finding him with hat off waiting for me, standing among a lot of peons and I thought there was an evidence of New England breeding and culture.

'I Saved My Pennies to Pay Hallen in Death's Debt'

"I had been interested in sports before, especially tennis, but there was no time after, with what I had set out to do. I worked all day and many nights to save. I wanted to pay all debts back and then—reach Hallen."—Benjamin Turner in his recital today in Portland, testifying to the utterness he nursed against James D. Hallen.

HUB IS BIGGEST MILK DRINKER IN COUNTRY

A 26 per cent. increase in the consumption of milk and dairy products observable over the six-year period from 1920 to 1926 was attributed to an educational and advertising campaign conducted by the National Dairy Council and its 14 branches, by M. D. Munn of Chicago, president of the organization, in an address at today's luncheon of the Advertising Club of Boston, held at the Bellevue Hotel. New England needs salesmanship, he declared. "Boston is the largest consumer of milk per capita of any city in the United States," the speaker declared, "and is the second largest per capita consumer of butter. This is largely due to advertising and education through national organizations.

"We do not confine our teaching to milk, but advise the use of fresh vegetables and fruit, the necessity of fresh air, of cleanliness, and plenty of drinking water." Maj. P. F. O'Keefe presided.

SEIZE MAN AS LYNN 'SLUGGER' IN HOT CHASE

Police say he resisted while being put into the patrol wagon.

He was described as about thirty-seven years old and of medium height. According to police, he answered, in some respects, the descriptions of the hugger given by girl victims during the past few days.

Boston police will interview the suspect to ascertain if he has any connection with the murder of Maybelle Matheson in West Roxbury or the attacks on several Roxbury girls.

Handkerchief May Be Matheson Death Clew

An initialed handkerchief was found today beneath the ice of the pond in the West Roxbury field where Maybelle Matheson was slain and police believe it may be an important clew to the identity of her slayer.

It was found by William Gannon, nineteen, of No. 22 Adams street, Everett, who was making a volunteer search of the murder scene, hoping to discover the murder weapon or other clews.

A second clew came from Arthur Faulkner, thirty-two, of No. 25 Granwood street, West Roxbury, who reported to Captain James F. Smith that about the time of the murder he saw a man running from the direction of the field.

Faulkner said the man ran along Baker street into Gardner street and disappeared in the darkness. He gave a rough description of him

WOULD CHANGE LAW ON PUBLIC LIGHT PLANTS

Changing of the law to permit municipal operation of electric lighting plants without the present necessity of a two-year vote by the City Council before the question is put to a popular ballot, was urged by Charles H. McGlue, chairman of the Democratic States committee, today at a State House hearing.

McGlue said the present law was enacted through the influence of private lighting concerns, and was "a bid for political corruption and graft."

In his arguments for such a bill, McGlue said the city of Holyoke, with a municipally-owned plant, sold electricity at the lowest rate in the country, 1 cents per kilowatt hour.

Opposition to McGlue's proposition was voiced by Sheldon E. Wardwell of the Massachusetts Electric and Gas Association, who declared the bill called for entry into the lighting field with sufficient investigation.

He contended that if taxes did not enter into the problem, private plants could market electricity cheaper than any municipally-operated company. McGlue's bill, he said, might encourage expenditure of millions of dollars by cities before they were prepared to handle the light problems.

HARVARD MAN'S AID FOR YALE IN DIVORCE

It took a Harvard man to win for his Yale brother, it was disclosed today in Newark, N. J., where Mrs. Josephine Larabee, formerly of Newton, is sued by her husband who charges the husband of Roberta Arnold, actress, with being "the other man."

Mrs. Larabee is being sued for divorce in what started out to be a divorce double-header, but which has been reduced to a single game through Roberta Arnold's withdrawal of her divorce suit against Frank Lynch.

Testimony that Larabee, a Yale graduate, called upon his sportive Albert, a Harvard student, to stop the beautiful Josephine with Lynch as they alighted from a sleeping car in Boston was given in the trial.

Lynch, however, denied that he had journeyed with Mrs. Larabee and declared he was in Boston on the night young Mrs. Larabee, whose husband is a Lakewood, N. J., merchant, was traveling.

And he also explained away a night he was allowed to have spent

$26,000 of Mutt-Jeff Salary Goes to Wife

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Mrs. Aedita S. Fisher, the former Countess De Beaumont, was awarded alimony of $26,000 a year today from her cartoonist husband, Harry C. (Bud) Fisher, from whom she was granted a legal separation last week.

Mrs. Fisher had been receiving $250 a week [illegible] temporary alimony and Justice Tierney doubled that amount as the permanent figure today. She asked $36,000 a year.

The Fishers were married at sea aboard the Leviathan Oct. 24, 1925, by Captain Hartley. The former countess sailed for Paris the following April saying she would "Never, never return." She charged the cartoonist beat her.

Justice Tierney was told Fisher receives approximately $250,000 a year from his cartoons.

DODGE'S WIFE LAYS PLIGHT TO FRENCH HATE

Detroit, Feb. 8 (I.N.S.S.)—Circumstances surrounding an automobile accident in Paris in which her wealthy husband, Horace E. Dodge, has just been acquitted, shows in a way the extreme dislike the French have for Americans, Mrs. Lois Knowlson Dodge said today.

Mrs. Dodge is suing for divorce because of "incompatibility of temperament."

According to dispatches, Dodge proved he was in Detroit attending his mother's wedding at the time. The court decided Mrs. Dodge and two men, one of whom gave his name as "Brody," were in the automobile at the time of the accident. Mrs. Dodge, according to the Paris police, declared Brody was her husband, Horace Dodge.

"It is very unfortunate that this year-old automobile accident had to come up now," Mrs. Dodge said. "Horace and I both thought the automobile incident a closed matter.

"Mr. Brody was driving my car when a child stumbled off into the gutter and struck our front wheel a girl. They created a disturbance and called a gendarme. He asked for Mr. Brody's license. Unfortunately, Mr. Brody did not have one and, to make matters worse, he said he was Mr. Dodge, owner of the car.

"He thought this would obviate further embarrassment, but it only complicated matters.

"I called the American Legation in Paris. The Legation got the case dismissed.

WIFE IN $100,000 SUIT AID WITNESS

Above Mrs. George B. Doane of Brookline, who is suing Mrs. Florence Densmore for $100,000 or alienation of her husband's love, and Miss F. Elva Whitemore, who will be a witness for Mrs. Doane in the trial in Dedham April 11. Interesting testimony is expected.

George Washington ~ Boston Evacuated ~ By W. E. Woodward

FORCED OUT BRITISH

In March, 1776, Washington gained a strategic point near Boston (now Washington Heights, South Boston). General Howe had no taste for another Bunker Hill. He evacuated amid a scene of chaos.

AIDED CAUSE

In the Spring of 1776 the cause gained vigor through the publication of Tom Paine's book, "Common Sense." Washington called it "sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning."

DECLARE FREEDOM

Thomas Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence and most of the fifty-six signatures were fixed to it by August 2, 1776. The Declaration was passed after a hot debate.

UNERRING AIM

The American of 1776 was a marksman without equal in the world. His thought was not of regimental columns and squares, but of shooting straight.

THREE WIVES' DEATHS PROBED

Much, however, depends upon the finding in the autopsy, performed today.

Prior to the autopsy, Medical Examiner Charles Shanks investigated his death and found the cause apparently alcoholism. Charroux said he and his wife had been drinking on the day before the woman's body was found.

In his investigation Dr. Shanks found that the second Mrs. Charroux, Rose Charroux, 34, was found dead in a cot at exactly the same hour as the third wife was found. At that time the couple lived at No. 229 South Front street. The home now is at No. 424 West Front street.

Dr. David P. O'Brien, medical examiner in 1924, pronounced cause of the death of the second Mrs. Charroux as probably due to alcoholism. A half-pint bottle containing a few drops of liquor was found in the pantry. Another fact that assumes more importance now is that the woman had been locked in the house by her husband.

Anna Golden of County street told the police that she had been with the second Mrs. Charroux during the day, and that when she realized the woman was dying she tried to get out of the house and found all the doors locked on the outside. She said she got out through the basement and notified John Cocco of Bolton street, who, in turn, summoned the police.

Charroux returned and found his wife dead and the police in the house.

Prince Eddie Near Cropper Even While Afoot

London, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The Prince of Wales suffered one of those embarrassing moments during the State ceremonies attendant upon the opening of Parliament today.

The great assembly of nobles and their ladies in the House of Lords gasped as the heir to the throne, failing to manipulate his sword and long red robe properly got them tangled up with his feet and stumbled.

The Prince, however, recovered quickly and flashed one of his roguish smiles as he left the House.

DISCHARGE MAN HELD FOR DEATH BY AUTO

No probable cause was found by Judge Charles S. Sullivan in Charlestown Court today in the case of Frederick Pereira of Bacon street, Chelsea, charged with manslaughter on Jan. 29, when the automobile he was operating on Chelsea street, Charlestown, killed Mrs. Catherine Mead, mother of three small children. He was discharged. Judge Sullivan also found Pereira not guilty of operating an automobile so as to endanger.

HUB APPROVES CONFESSIONAL

gestion of Dr. Fosdick, who also called for more beauty in church services.

DR. SAMUEL G. BISHOP, Sufragan Bishop of the Boston Episcopal Archdiocese: "Fosdick expresses the views of many clergymen of all denominations. Christian ministers who are doing the best kind of work welcome confidential talks with their parishioners relative to personal matters. Confessions are frequently going on under a different name. Every Christian minister has the experience of giving counsel to those seeking spiritual aid in time of trouble."

REV. DR. HAROLD B. HUNTING, pastor Union Congregational Church, Columbus avenue—Voluntary confession is a wholesome and sanitary thing, but I am rather skeptical of the value of compulsory confession. So far as beautifying the community service is concerned, I heartily agree with Dr. Fosdick in urging that church service should be impressive at all times.

REV. DR. FREDERICK PALLADINO, pastor Upham's Corner Methodist Church, Dorchester—I believe a great many people find relief and comfort in having a dependable confidant, such as a confessor in the ritual of the Roman Catholic Church. There is a psychological advantage to be gained in voluntary confession. As for making confession a compulsory part of worship, I should say that this is not desirable.

"I think that much of the good accomplished by confession is already done in a normal manner. A great many people give confidences of most intimate nature to the average minister. I know, at least, that this is true in my case. However, I consider the theory of the confessional is most desirable. The greatest need of this country at present is not more creeds or rituals, but more religion."

REV. DR. HARRY R. HILL, pastor First Methodist Church, Beacon Hill—"There is much we can learn from the Roman Catholic Church, and no one there is ready it can learn from us. I don't see any particular necessity for adopting the confessional. I believe the greater need of man is to think and let think. Necessarily as follows the individual conscience will be developed. There is no ultimate authority in this world and, while truth is eternal, we see it from different angles."

HELPS HIS RIVAL IN DIVORCE

at the Larabee home, on New Year's Eve and New Year's itself, of 1926. "I was calling on Mr. and Mrs. Larabee at Lakewood," he said. "Now, I don't ordinarily drink much—not a whole lot, that is—but I had never had any applejack before.

"I took three drinks and—well, it was necessary for me to remain all night."

"Where did you spend the night?" Lynch was asked.

The party lasted until 7 o'clock in the morning. I slept until 10 o'clock in my clothes in the conservatory."

The cheeks of Lynch, big, powerful and handsome, standing six feet two inches in his silk sox, had been dampened by tears previously, during his vehement denials that he had left a sleeping car of a New York train in Boston with Mrs. Larabee when only one bag was carried.

He asserted indignantly that friendship with the beautiful girl from Newton had never trespassed beyond the bounds of propriety.

Meanwhile, in the background of the divorce trial hovers a suit for $100,000, brought by Larabee against Lynch and charging alienation of Mrs. Larabee's affections.

SAYS HUSBAND BLACKED EYE TO "KEEP HER HOME"

When her husband wanted her to stay home he blackened her eye, said Mrs. Arietta M. Miner, West Newton, in Middlesex Court today, when she seeks a divorce from Henry A. Miner, Winchester automobile dealer. The eye blacking incident, she said, happened when she was starting on a vacation. She said her husband claimed he was "only dreaming" when he hit her. On another occasion her husband tipped over the breakfast table, spilling dishes on the floor. The hearing is before Judge Arthur K. Bean. Mrs. Miner asks custody of the couple's child, Marjorie, 3.

CHALIAPIN'S DAUGHTER WORKING AS SALES GIRL

New York, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Because she is tired of the world of music in which her father is a prominent figure and wishes to be "financially independent," Stella Chaliapin, daughter of Feodore Chaliapin, former Metropolitan Opera basso, has gone to work as a saleslgirl in a Fifth avenue department store.

Miss Chaliapin, who is 22, is one of ten children of the famous Russian singer. She appreciates her father's voice and "loves to hear him sing," but she has decided her career will be commercial rather than artistic.

She is working as a saleslgirl at the perfume counter but she has ambitions to be a buyer.

GIRL IN LABOR CHIEF'S CASE ATTACKED

Scoffing at the idea that Ethel Houseman, beneficiary of the late Dominic D'Alessandro, Quincy contractor, had lived under the roof for years on a purely platonic basis, Atty. Robert T. Bushnell argued a motion for jury trial of the late contractor's will before Judge McCoole at Dedham today.

"Does it seem likely," asked Bushnell, "That this young woman whom your honor heard testify that she lived with D'Alessandro merely as a friend and secretary could gain such an influence over him by platonic relationship that he leaves her everything in his will and leaves his wife hardly enough to support a dog?"

"From the moments he entered his home, Miss Houseman exerted a powerful influence over the aged man. She could twist him around her little finger and being able to do so she treated his wife like a servant. She forced a separation between the two and ended a drunken New Year's orgy by putting Mrs. D'Alessandro out into the street. Platonic friendship?" He went on to charge Miss Houseman with another offense.

Bushnell waived the issue that the will was forged when he came into court today. He explained to the court that the expense of having handwriting experts was too great for his client and now is basing his attempt to break the will entirely on the undue influence issue.

Dominic D'Alessandro, wealthy resident of the International Hotel, Carlisle Union, died at his Quincy home September1, He left the bulk of his $200,000 estate to Ethel Houseman. His widow charged the young woman used undue influence and also charged the will was a forgery. After Bushnell's arguments John McCoole took the case under advisement.

SALE OF RUM OUTSIDE 3-MILE LIMIT HELD LEGAL

Halifax, N. S., Feb 8 (A.P.)—Selling liquor over the side of a vessel beyond the three-mile limit does not constitute conspiracy to smuggle into Ireland, Justice Audet of the Exchequer Court ruled at Ottawa, counsel for owners of the schooner Bluenose were informed today.

Action was brought to confiscate the Rums and her liquor cargo on the ground that liquor had been sold over the side and that although the sale took place beyond the three-mile limit the vendors must have known the purchaser intended to commit an act of smuggling and were therefore accessories. The court held operators of the Rums could not be held responsible for illegal intentions of persons with whom they conducted a legal business.

Boys Chop Hole in Ice, Drown

Ansonia, Ct., Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The bodies of Stanley Mosiawi, six, and Marion Cwilickowski, four, were recovered from the canal of the American Brass Company today. The boys, it is believed, chopped a hole in the ice and fell into the water.

KING GEORGE URGES PEACE

London, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The third session of the present British Parliament, elected in 1924, was opened in state by King George, with time-honored ceremony today. Huge crowds lined the streets to see the royal procession. Queen Mary accompanied the King. The speech from the throne was unusually brief.

"My relations with the foreign powers continue to be friendly," the King said. "The League of Nations has been strengthened and further steps taken toward the restoration of normal international relations in Europe by the entry of Germany into the league.

"Continuation of the civil war in China and the anti-foreign and particularly anti-British agitation by which it is accompanied, have caused me grave anxiety. In consequence of what happened at Hankow and in other places, my government felt it necessary to dispatch to the Far East a sufficient force to protect the lives of my British and Indian subjects against mob violence and armed attacks.

"But I earnestly desire a peaceful settlement of the difficulties which have arisen.

"My government will maintain our traditional policy of non-interference in the internal affairs of China."

CAPTAIN OF WAR FAME TRIED AS WIFE-BEATER

Captain Charles Ainsleigh of Atlantic, who attained fame during the World War when his barge was fired on by a German submarine raider off Orleans, was arraigned in Quincy District Court today charged with assault and battery on his wife and son, Jack. He was found guilty of assault on his wife and placed on probation for a year.

PEKIN GUARD ON FOREIGNERS

Peking, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Protection of foreign lives and property was pledged by Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian dictator, in a proclamation issued today re-declaring war on "bolshevism."

The proclmation was issued by Chang as generalissimo of the An-Kuochun, an alliance of northern war lords. It promises that the Peking government will maintain national credit obligations, such as foreign and domestic loans secured by the Chinese maritime customs.

Defenders of Shanghai Drive Enemy Back

Shanghai, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The shadow of the war cod receded somewhat from Shanghai today as the city received reports that the Cantonese army had been turned back by defending forces under the northern general, Pai Pao-Shan, and was left in retreat some 200 miles away.

The result has been that the proposals for neutralization of the international settlement here and foreign plans for defense of the city in case of emergency became less pressing.

The Nationalists retreated to Changshan, near the Kangsi province border, retaining only a few miles of Chekiang province territory. The southern push of the northerners already is threatening Changshan.

Age Limit for C. M. T. C.

Washington, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—Men past the age of 24 would be ineligible for citizens' military training camps under the Wainwright bill passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

YALE GUESTS TATOOED TO KEEP UNBIDDEN OUT

New Haven, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—There was no "crashing of the gate" at this year's Yale junior prom for each guest was "tatooed." Attendants armed with rubber stamps, which left a vivid purple mark, were stationed at the entrance and each girl and her male companion were "stamped" as they arrived. Those leaving early during the evening could identify only by displaying this badge of purple.

RADIO DIALOG by William Rados

The first station we picked up last night in our reception watch was WJZ. Now we are so used to hearing WJZ coming in well that we immediately tuned away and do not even know what the program was. Away we turned our dial down until we heard "This is Baltimore." We then knew that we were near the bottom and stopped to listen. "Not so good," said we. WBAL was coming in strongly and somewhat broadly as usual, but was being received poorly. In fact, we could hardly understand what the performances was about. In and around WBAL it seemed that there were dozens of stations hammering away with all sorts of programs. We did not listen long there.

The next stop we made was station WMAK of Buffalo. WMAK was coming in loudly and without perceptible fading. However, the orchestra which we heard seemed to have faded long ago. The music was poorly presented and it was about as poor a dance number as we ever heard from WMAK. Then we went up to WADC. Wild jazz of the jazziest sort was coming through, but it was good. The boys playing out there in Columbus seemed to be making overtime as the reception was almost perfect and the music was interesting. Knowing that one of the local stations would have a dance orchestra we tuned in WEAF to listen to Jacques Renard and his band. We have heard this band before and it is very good, but after listening to two station announcers and then musically starting with a good local team, we felt fortified in our decision and held it against the band.

Not according to plans all night we decided to go on our tour of the air and so as we turned our dial for our second move in light, we stopped and the first station we no longer recognized. Then it was that we got into a mix-up for a few minutes. KDKA, WEAR, WJZ and WGZ were coming in with about the same strength and as we turned our dial we caught parts of each station. Finally we heard a couple of announcements, we were somewhat at sea. However, matters soon straightened out and we heard the announcer at WPG tell us about many things.

More current-producing materials

THE Eveready Layerbilt "B" Battery No. 486 is the greatest improvement ever made in radio batteries. The new Layerbilt construction uses layer on layer of current-producing materials instead of the usual space-wasting round cells.

For long battery life and economy all loudspeaker sets should use Heavy-Duty batteries because these last twice as long as the smaller Light-Duty batteries. The Eveready Layerbilt contains a greater quantity of active material and gives more service per dollar of cost than any other Heavy-Duty "B" battery.

'L' MEN FIGHT FOR 8 HOURS

Representatives of the Boston Elevated and the Eastern Massachusetts street railways today locked horns at the State House with the street carmen's unions over a proposed reduction in the number of hours.

In agreement, it was brought out, the Elevated, Eastern Massachusetts, Worcester and Springfield roads have at the present time what is generally known as an eight-hour day. On the former road, 60 per cent of the employes work the eight-hour shift and the other 40 per cent work in fourteen-hour shifts.

Attorney James H. Vahey, for the men, argued that the carmen should be granted the all other large groups of employes throughout the State are enjoying an eight-hour day.

Passage of such a bill, General Manager Edward Dana of the Elevated declared, would eventually mean the employment of an additional force of 1,100 men, with an increased cost to the car-riders of $1,899,000 a year.

Woman Is Saved From Burial Alive by Daughter's Delay

Lemberg, Feb. 8 (I.N.S.).—A daughter's delay in arriving for her mother's funeral probably saved the mother's life.

While the tardy services were being held, the "dead woman," Mrs. Russ, awoke from a trance and raised herself from the coffin, setting the mourners aghast. But for the delay in the arrival of the daughter the woman would have been buried alive.

CAROL WILL GO BACK IF 'WIFE SETS HIM FREE'

Budapest, Feb 8 (I.N.S.).—The condition of King Ferdinand is hopeless and supporters of Prince Carol are preparing an extensive movement to restore him to his rights to the throne, according to reports from Bucharest.

By WILLIAM P. CARNEY.
Copyright, 1927, International News Service

Paris, Feb. 8.—Prince Carol of Rumania has announced his intention of never returning to Rumania or re-establishing his rights to the throne, if this is made condition upon his return to his wife, Princess Helen, it was learned authoritatively today.

The prince has been in conference here for several days with emissaries of Queen Marie who have suggested to Prince Carol that he return to Bucharest in a private capacity, without conditions, and discuss with King Ferdinand, in his dying days, the future of the Rumanian dynasty.

Thus far Prince Carol has resisted these overtures, declaring that he still loves Mme. Lupescu and will remain loyal to her, and moreover he has announced his dislike of the intrigues of Bucharest. He says if he ever goes back he will insist that he be given a divorce from Helen.

Mme. Lupescu, however, has declared her willingness to step into oblivion if her retirement is necessary to the return of Prince Carol.

"I want to do the right thing for my country, and I will sacrifice myself and my love," Mme. Lupescu told her friends here recently.

Prince Carol has told the emissaries of Queen Marie that he resents the intervention if his parents in his private life and feels that the king and the queen abetted in the publication of his relations with Mme. Lupescu; but now that these relations are known to the whole world he believes it his duty to stand by Mme. Lupescu.

BOY SCOUTS TO HOLD BIRTHDAY PARTY TONIGHT

A novel safety campaign conducted in five public schools of Boston by as many Boy Scouts, and the annual reunion of the Veterans of the Boy Scout Movement, made up today's program of the Boy Scout anniversary week. This evening in Bates Hall of the Y. M. C. A. building on Huntington avenue the Boston Boy Scout Council will hold its official birthday party in recognition of the fact that seventeen years ago today application was made in Congress at Washington for incorporation for the Boy Scouts of America.

SAYS OLD-AGE PENSIONS WOULD SAVE $3,000,000

Establishment of non-contributory old age pensions in Massachusetts to take the place of the present system of poor relief would effect a saving of $3,000,000 a year, Wendell P. Thore of Squantum today advised the Legislative committee on pensions. Today, he pointed out, the poor relief system is costing the state $9,000,000 yearly. Under the old age bequest fund, which he advocated, the cost would be but $6,000,000, the speaker said.

BOY CRIPPLED IN CRASH HELD IN THEFT OF AUTO

Possibly crippled for life as a result of the wrecking of an automobile that he and two chums misappropriated, according to the police, Samuel Flocciher appeared on crutches in Municipal court today. He has had a heel amputated. His case was continued until February 11, as was that of Frank Downes.

Henry Ford of the West End was found to be only seventeen years old and his case was tirned over to the Juvenile court.

SECOND SECTION

An Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Gay Moore and Christine Noe, her cousin, are employed in the State Street house of Johnstone Baird. Gay as a typist and Christine as telephone operator. Christine is in love with Roger Pennington and Gay is in love with Stanley Baird, Johnstone Baird's son. Christine runs around with Ivor Barclay in order to arouse Penny's jealousy. Stan's family disown him when he marries Gay. They happily start housekeeping. Stan obtains a position as an automobile mechanic. Christine marries Penny. They go to Europe for their honeymoon. Christine is jealous of Peggy Baird, Stan's sister, and Gay feels that Stanley has too much interest in Mimi Brooks, a girl of his own Back Bay set. Christine and Gay go to tea at a fashionable hotel, where they are met by Ivor Barclay. Stanley tells Gay that he has completed an invention which will mean they can move from their shabby apartment and have a real home. Penny comes to see Gay and she tells him he is spoiling Christine. He admits he is afraid to do otherwise for fear he would lose her. Stan tells Gay his father has offered to finance his new company. Gay worries for fear Stanley will be tempted to return to his old ways. Christine and Penny have a quarrel over money. Stan's mother visits Gay.

CHAPTER 38

He was very gentle with her in the days that came. Always bringing her some little present, anticipating her wishes, denying her nothing, loving her silently, tenderly.

There were times when she seemed resigned; ready to settle down and let destiny overtake her. Then rebellion would come surging; she would demand that Penny take her out—anywhere everywhere, just so Stanley were bright and there was music and laughter.

He demurred only when she insisted upon a party at the Stanley home.

"Their shindys are too savage. Too much to drink—dancing and nothing up. Stupid, that rough stuff."

"Oh—stupid. As if it wasn't stupid to sit here with your hands folded. I'm going. You needn't take me."

But of course he did. He wondered among Nan Stanley's fourteen intimates, watching Christine, terribly conscious, helpless.

The life of the party she was a darting flame, so vivid, so avid of pleasure. White and moon-pale now she was calling across the ballroom her gayety stripping like bright streamers; now they were asking her to dance.

The orchestra struck up the latest jazz number; they cleared a space. The rhythm seemed to floor through her as she took the floor, head thrown back, laughing, wine-glass in hand.

The Charleston speeded to a furious tempo; she did it well—by well. They called for more; shrilly they threw flowers at her. She danced again, longer, more madly.

They would have had her do more, but Penny stepped forward, darting her words. He said nothing; merely took her arm and led her up the stairs to the dressing room where their wraps were.

With a little, strangled cry she collapsed there, on the floor.

Mimi Brooks was, as Stanley had said, a rotten driver.

Tearing around a corner down town in her custom-built roadster, she scraped the curb with her running-board, missed a woman and baby-buggy by inches, and brought up with her lamps smashed into the back of a coal truck.

The engine gallantly attempted to send the front wheels up the back of the truck, but only managed to cough in a sputter of gasoline as Mimi hurled herself upon the emergency brake.

The brutal stop sent a shiver through the car; something cracked and it began to list toward the pavement. The grinning face of the truck driver showed at the window. Mimi made that time. Miss. Was actin reckless, kinda. Say—"

Mimi stepped "daintily" and began to look for a telephone.

No drug-stores in the block and but one business place—a real estate office. This she entered and spoke to a young woman whose back was turned.

At the first sound of her drawling voice the young woman shirked around and stood there staring in dismay.

"Why—Mrs. Baird!" Mimi took in the typewriter, the paper cuffs, the ink smudge on Gay's cheek. A smile rippled across her pallid face so cold, so full of malice. "Only wanted to phone—"

Gay motioned toward the instrument and sat down weakly. Trouble now—this woman would lose no time passing her daughter's name.

Demand Teeth in Law to End Fake Stock Sales

FRAUD CURB NEEDED IN BAY STATE

Changes Urged to Put Blue Sky Law Prosecutions in Attorney-General's Hands

More fraudulent securities are sold in Massachusetts than in any other State of the Union, according to President John Richardson of the Boston Better Business Bureau, who appealed today at the State House for changes in the "Blue Sky" laws.

Dean Homer Albers of Boston University Law School defended the Boston Curb Exchange. He attacked Governor Fuller's statement that the Blue Sky law needs more teeth.

Dean Albers declared the Governor was misled as to alleged failures in the Curb exchange. In 1924-25, and said the exchange welcomed a thorough investigation.

Clarence S. Luitweiler of Newton, who introduced one of the bills, declared a similar bill in New York drove out the "stock crooks," driving most of them into Boston, and decried to the brokerage houses which failed in Boston with huge assets to therefore.

Richardson urged the legislature committee on banks and banking to recommend legislation which would place administration of the "Blue Sky" law under the Attorney-General, instead of the department of public utilities.

This change, advocated by Governor Fuller in his inaugural address, met with vigorous opposition from several other speakers before the committee. Several bills calling for alterations and investigations are before the committee.

"Sales of fraudulent securities in Massachusetts is going on apace," asserted Richardson. "In our opinion, Massachusetts is the centre of the country for such activities.

"Under the interpretation given the Blue Sky law by the department of public utilities a public hearing is necessary before revocation of a broker's license or prohibition of the sale of a security.

Representative Babcock of Milton spoke in favor of Richardson's stand, but Harlow L. Perrin, representing a member of the board of governors of the Boston Curb Exchange, Andrew A. Highlands, secretary of the public utilities board; Robert H. Gibson of the American Bond & Mortgage Company, and Henry W. Savage, representing the Boston Association of Stock Exchange houses and the Investment Brokers Association, opposed the measure.

Davison declared there should be more evidence of fraud before a security is barred from public sale.

Coolidge Walks 'Round and 'Round 2 Miles for Exercise

Washington, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Yielding to advice of his family and close friends President Coolidge has decided to resume his daily walks which are about the only form of exercise he takes.

Twice this week after ceasing work at the Executive offices the President chose the ellipse south of the White House for his stroll. He found that by walking three times around the ellipse he covered two miles, and this length has been settled upon as a daily minimum.

HEIRESS TORN FROM FATHER

How little Lucienne Helen Nolan, heiress to $200,000, was taken forcibly by her aunt from her bedside of her dying father was described in a letter written by a nurse to the child's mother, Mrs. Lucienne Nolan of Quincy, who is fighting to regain the little girl.

A hint of impending trouble with the Nolan family, a prophecy which has come true, was given Mr. Dond by the devoted nurse. Miss Maude Richards.

The nurse's letter is in the hands of former Assistant District Attorney Thomas D. Lavelle, counsel for Mrs. Dond, who has not only interested the United States government in the case, but has won a preliminary legal skirmish by having Mrs. Dond named, in the courts of Hartford, Ct., natural guardian of the missing child.

SEEK TO REVEAL DOPE RING BY HUB ARREST

Harry Stolzner, whose arrest in a Back Bay apartment for the possession of narcotics is said by Federal agents to be the most important made in New England in recent months, was held in $5,000 when arraigned before U. S. Commissioner Jenny today.

It is charged he has a long record for drug law violations and agents said today they expected to uncover the source of supply for a New England dope ring through his arrest.

FINDS RIVAL RUBS BACK IN BATH

Jealous Princess, Favorite Wife, Cuts Up Her Hubby's Trousers; He Loses Revolt

Manila, Feb. 8 (A.P.).—The American - educated Princess Paiiata Kiram was willing enough to share her husband, Datu Tahil, Moro rebel chief, with his three other wives, but to allow a comely Sulu girl to shower affections on him—ah, no, no, no, no.

That, in substance, is the reason for the downfall of Datu Tahil. Secret dispatches today from Jolo Island, tell of the secret drama of love, rebellion, flight and capture.

It was related that as soon as it became known to the Sultan of Sulu that Tahil, one of his chiefs, was in rebellion against the Philippine government, the sultan sent his favorite niece, the princess, to the scene of conflict summoning Tahil to the royal palace for a conference looking toward a peaceful settlement of the difficulties which caused the insurrection.

BEAUTY SCRUBS BACK

Princess Tarhata, arriving at the fort where Tahil had dug in with 20 of his armed followers, found him in the process of taking a bath. That in itself was not so bad, but the princess incidentally discovered that a comely young woman was scrubbing his back.

Being the fourth and favorite wife of Tahil, the princess objected. The royal lady, a graduate of the University of Illinois, seized a pail of the chieftain's bath water and dashed it in the face of the accommodating young woman.

In order to make it clearly understood that she was displeased she then seized a knife and attacked Datu Tahil's trousers, which were in a convenient heap close by, in shreds.

They were the only trousers Tahil had with him. He positively could not attend the conference at the Royal Palace without trousers and so the negotiations were held up.

WHAT PANTS DID.

The Sultan, so the story goes, watching from royal balcony was exhausted and then, believing one of his chieftains had ignored a command, sent word to the Philippine constabulary to go ahead and attack Tahil if they cared to.

The constabulary did. It moved up to the fortification and then learned that the princess was inside. That stayed off the attack for several days. Finally Tahil and the princess fled.

SAYS IT HITS LABOR.

This kind of legislation has been used in other States against labor unions, he charged.

John F. BURN HATCHES TO KEEP WARM ON HARDING

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Relief was brought today to seven ill-lapsed shivering passengers who for three days had wallowed in the North Atlantic on board the United States line steamer President Harding surrounded with every luxury but one—heat or the means of producing heat.

A leak in one of the fuel oil tanks discovered shortly after the liner had reached at Queenstown on the voyage from Bremen to New York, developed so that when near Nova Scotia the supply was so low it was decided to make for Halifax for repairs and to replenish the tanks.

But the oil supply was too low even to bring the liner into Halifax and the captain anchored off Jeddors and asked for a convoy.

Three tugs went out, one carrying a supply of fuel oil, and found the crew of the liner burning the wooden bacon covers to make heat for cooking purposes so that the few weeks for the Christmas trade, 16 months hence.

Chaplin at Work Was in Another World

By MILDRED HARRIS

(Copyright, 1927, by Mildred Harris. Reproduction, whole or in part, prohibited.)

Mildred Harris, Charlie Chaplin's first wife, in this installment tells of the film comedian's absorption in his work given to the most minute detail.

I began to sense Charlie's absorption in work even during our honeymoon when I first saw him begin to yield to his moods; when he is working, nothing else matters. He is in another world. Many times he would forget his meals.

"Charlie," I would say, "Do you know that you forget to eat lunch today?"

He would not even be listening.

He was too absorbed in his work, in his creation of something that would take human emotions, human reactions and shape them to fit his conception of life.

Time was no element. He would work, sometimes, all night. Long hours at the studio all day and then home, not to relax or rest, but to sit and ponder the material source, ponder if the day were passed a later organization would not be able to meet.

John F. Streeter, president of George Washington Chapter, urged that anyone who advocated "criminal sabotage, violence or other unlawful methods of terrorism as a means of accomplishing industrial or political reform" should come within the provisions of the act.

CHARGES "WAR PLOT."

Another member of the society, J. Warren Kilbon, Jr., told of a meeting in Boston which was the meeting of the Fellowship of Youth for Peace, war on all militants. Among those who appeared, he said, was the grandson of a famous American poet.

John Van Waerenwyck, president of the Massachusetts branch, A. F. of L., pointed out that, under such a law members of the organization could be "hung to the nearest lamppost."

SANTA CLAUS CUTS TAX ON CHILDREN'S BLOCKS

Uncle Sam played an early Santa Claus role today with a decision by the U. S. Customs Court of Appeals granting importers a 20 per cent reduction in duties on large shipments of stone building blocks for children. The blocks were brought into this country during the past few weeks for the Christmas trade, it was explained.

ATTORNEY CLEARED IN OLYMPIA MACRI CASE

New Haven, Feb. 8 (A.P.)—Judge Arthur F. Ellis in Superior court today accepted the recommendation of special prosecutor that charges against Atty. Joseph Kolatsky, growing out of events following the first trial in which he defended Olympia Macri in 1926 on the charge of murdering John Ragiano, be dropped.

ASK CRIMINAL LAW TO CURB U. S. 'REDS'

Charging American institutions are being undermined by communistic and allied bolshevistic propagandists, officers of George Washington Chapter, Massachusetts Society, Sons of the American Revolution, in a call for the chieftain's bath water and today urged passage of a law defining "criminal syndicalism" and setting penalties for the crime.

The bill was bitterly opposed at the legislative hearing by leaders in organized labor, who asserted the proposed legislation was directed chiefly against labor unionism, and if the law were passed a labor organization would not be able to meet.

JAIL TERM TAKES BREATH TEACHER'S BREATH, FAINTS

Given a suspended sentence of six months in the House of Correction, Miss Sally Beni Fales of Huntington avenue, a teacher of "plastic breathing," fainted today in Municipal court.

Miss Fales was found guilty of larceny of $1,000 from two women who said they entrusted money to her for investment in stock but found she placed it to her own account in a brokerage house which failed. Her physician testified she was suffering from tumor and would be in grave danger of death if sent to jail, and Judge James H. Devlin agreed to suspend sentence.

Caronia Due Next Sunday

The Cunard line steamship Caronia, from Liverpool and Queenstown, will arrive here next Sunday, according to reports received today. The vessel sailed last Saturday with 150 passengers for this port.

PAUL CLAY CALLS FORD AIDES "LIGHTWEIGHTS"

Washington, Feb. 8 (I.N.S.).—A dominating personality in a big business enterprise is a tremendous goodwill asset, Paul Clay, economist, testified today before the Board of Tax Appeals hearing the $130,000,000 Ford tax suit.

As examples, Clay singled out Henry Ford and the late John M. Patterson.

"Personality is a tremendous factor in corporations, as intangible values lie in personality," Clay said. "Patterson was the whole dictator of the National Cash Register Co., and when he died there was no one in the company big enough to take his place. They were all lightweights. It would have been a similar situation with the Ford Motor Company if Ford had died in 1913.

EDWARD M. MARTIN FUNERAL THURSDAY

The funeral of Edward M. Martin of the Boston Evening American composing room will take place at 9 o'clock Thursday morning at the Church of the Most Precious Blood, Hyde Park. Mr. Martin died at the City Hospital after an operation. He was taken ill a week ago and went to the hospital for a slight operation. Pneumonia caused his death. He was 54 years old.

Mr. Martin was a former president of the Boston Typographical Union.

"Guilty" ~ Signs Confession ~ By Jean McDonough

"I CLIMBED THROUGH THE window and dropped to the ground and hurried away. That's the whole story, Edwards," he sighed when he had finished. "Now I'll sign your copy and you'll be able to free Davis.' When I was ready to go he shook my hand weakly. He looked relieved. 'Thanks, Edwards,' he said, 'you've helped me a lot. I'm ready to die now. . . . I'm paying for Alton's life.'

"DORLAND DIED A FEW minutes after I left. Now that we know the truth we must see that Davis is freed immediately. I was too confused to answer. (If Dorland hadn't been mortally wounded he never would have confessed and Davis would have been executed.) I turned to Charles, "Are you sure Dorland was sane when he confessed to you," I asked.

(Copyright, 1927, by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

"THAT'S THE ONLY TROUBLE with this whole confession," he replied. "How could any man who didn't actually kill your father be so well acquainted with everything connected with the unhappy event?" "That's true, Charles," I agreed. "I believe Dorland's story, but will the Governor believe it?" "That confession is the truth, Doris," he said sharply, "and I'm going to make the Governor believe it."

BY THAT TIME WE HAD reached Boston. We hurried over to the State House. Charles went into the Governor's office while I waited outside. What if the Governor didn't accept the confession and insisted that Davis was guilty and must be put to death? That had happened before. The guilty man was dead now . . . he couldn't testify. His signed confession meant life or death to Davis. Charles just had to make the Governor accept it as the truth. (Continued tomorrow.)

STAGE SCREEN MUSIC

CRAVEN SCORES IN OWN PLAY AT HOLLIS

By NICHOLAS YOUNG.

SMART dialogue and crisp epigrams do not always make good drama, though there is much in both to help the striving dramatist over the well known pitfalls. In "Money From Home" Frank Craven takes two sides of an argument and manages to come through with more success as an actor than an author.

This newest of Mr. Craven's writing exploits picked up an audience at the Hollis and evidently reported it from Falls Creek, Pa., to the glittering Rialto in New York and there was no visible taint. It is not always that way with the suburban drama that moves city-ward, though Mr. Craven, a playwright of many excursions, has yet to confound the censors and make good game for the sportsmen gunning for soiled literature.

EXCELS AS ACTOR NOW.

There was a time when we would have proclaimed broadly that Frank Craven was a better playwright than actor, when were the days of "The First Year" and "New Brooms." After an easy evening with "Money From Home" we are quite sure he is a much better actor than author. In any event, he makes the most of a hard task, for "Money From Home" is not with an exceedingly slim idea that grows slimmer and slimmer as the evening moves along.

Chiefly, the play concerns an up state lassie who has acquired a small inheritance and who has a passionate flair for the glitter of Broadway. How she meets an unreputable doctor and makes Syracuse is a matter of only local interest—but she does. When the two pronounced fakers are enmeshed in amusing complications, if you have any understanding of Frank Craven and his theatrical impulses, you must know now that everything in the cask comes out clean and beautifully pressed. You may have laughed harder and more often at "Spanish Love" with Mr. Craven, but you never have left the theatre with a more positive notion that the Craven watchword is purity, and plenty of it.

GIVEN STRONG SUPPORT.

Reformation takes some time, but before you are half through the second act of "Money From Home" you know the girl is virtuous, and by the time the third act is reached Mr. Craven, as a backsliding doctor, finds a little religion on his own account.

A temperately behaving cast handles Mr. Craven's none too difficult situations. Of course, an author who gives himself the leading role can hardly be said to draw a little the best of things. As something of a revelation (Miss Ethel Remey from history) Roberta Arnold plays sleuthful from first to last and seldom misses a point of contact.

Camilla Dalberg, John Ravold, who has had better opportunities, and Leo Donnelly, groomed for the stage, skicker of the big time, turn in excellent performances. Anyway, "Money From Home" is an unanswerable argument that Frank Craven is a pretty smart comedian.

"THE SHELF" IS BIG HIT AT PLYMOUTH

The longest bundle of wit and wisdom to adorn the current theatrical semester was borne in upon the Plymouth last night with "The Shelf," a comedy framed and fashioned by Frances Davis which was forthwith enriched by the talents of Professor Stair, Arthur Byron and Donald Meek. For all around smartness of dialogue, sound construction and excellence of acting nothing that has filtered through the playshops this year is its superior; no more than one or two can hold a candle to it—which is putting it as mildly as sentiment clogged with superlatives could permit.

Arthur Byron

A program note offered a droll hint of the ensuing festival for the audience. It read, "Place—Kiwanis resort." A city of fifteen thousand inhabitants in any state of the Union the fancy suggests." You were somewhat prepared then to meet the folks.

They were all there. The local man of business, the state politician boss, the engaged couple, the Reverend Doctor and Mrs. Scandso and the son interesting members of the place who was the despair of the populace simply because she WAS interesting.

Comely jealous wagging tongues busy hardly more far away, until it was discovered that only her affections could save the reputations of the more respectable elements, political machinations were exposed, you were permitted some distressingly real glimpses of "inside government" and such things as "good name" were reduced to shreds.

Arthur Byron's portrayal of the shrewd politician was a perfection of acting, so perfect that it never seemed like acting at all. Frances Starr was as fascinating as any woman has a right to be, and Donald Meek's appearance as the dry-voiced but mirth evoked hearty applause, and Leah Winslow, as the girl's best friend mate, Wright Kramer, Lee Patrick and other supporting characters contributed their share to the evening, making "The Shelf" a high spot in the season's drama.

LOVE LIGHTS THE WAY IN HOME DRAMA

MUTUALLY AGREEABLE

In "Money from Home" at the Hollis Frank Craven and Roberta Arnold do a little romantic pretending, but make it real in the last act.

VANNI-MARCOUX TRIUMPHS AS BORIS

By MOSES SMITH.

"Boris Godunoff," music-drama by Moussorgsky, greeted a large audience at the Boston Opera House last night. It was a "Boris" without Chaliapin, the magnificent Russian who was the first and only previous creator of the title role in America, but you can't expect a generally attended performance by the Russian opera company a few years later.

But although Chaliapin was not on the stage, the production was not ruined, as some might have feared, but rather reached a very high level, due largely to the outstanding histrionic talents of Vanni-Marcoux His remarkable display last night proved that not even Chaliapin is indispensible in an operatic production, however the Russian bass may have towered above his fellows.

SCENIC PATCHWORK.

Pushkin's play, from which the libretto of this work is drawn, is a curious drama, consisting largely of scenes at all. It is a patchwork of scenes, many of them reminiscent of folk-drama, but attaining very unity in revolving about the central figure of the Czar Boris, Similarly, Moussorgsky's music is not conventional opera at all. Sometimes it is of the most naïve simplicity, and it would be hard even in this vein had it not been "doctored" by Rimsky-Korsakov.

Yet "Boris" is capable of producing a profound impression on an audience, after Vanni-Marcoux's unfounded interpretation of Mephistopheles in "Faust" and his brilliant acting in "Pelleas" last Saturday there was good ground for anticipating a notable Boris. And so he proved. There was not a suggestion of mannerism, of stiltedposing, of acting as such. His whole demeanor on the stage suggested the utmost sincerity and the utmost understanding of the character. Only in the dignity of the czar in the coronation scene was it possible to note any shortcomings.

PERFECT MONK.

The remainder of the Chicago production was similar to the previous one seen here. Florence Pendleton as Marina, Cesare Sturani as Dimitri, and Lodovico Oliviero as the two vagabonds, contributed skilful characterizations. Antonio Cortis as Gregory, the pretended Dimitri, left much to be desired musically, and Cyrena van Gordon was not quite what we desired as Marina.

The settings were consistently beautiful. And the work of the chorus, which is all-important in this opera, was very good. Mr. Polacco conducted.

Will personally appear at Loew's State next week to illumine the stage presentation.

GILBERT STARS IN 'SHOW OFF'

Thumbs in vest and effecting a nonchalance that no tribulation could compromise, Walter Gilbert strutted at the head of the Keith-Albee Players to new laurels in George Kelly's comedy, "The Show Off," at the St. James Theatre last night.

Aubrey, the swaggering, swanky freight clerk with a millionaire pretentions on thirty per week, was a typically Gilbert role, affording the versatile young man an unexcelled opportunity to be his best. He made the most of his chance.

Florence Pendleton, as Mrs. Fisher and Aubrey's unappreciative mother-in-law, shared the plaudits with Gilbert. It was her first opportunity in an important role since the opening of the Keith-Albee Players' brownan and her characterization of Mrs. Fisher earned her a new place in the esteem of St. James' audiences.

Florence Shirley played opposite Gilbert, of course, as Aubrey's worshipping wife, the only one who understood his vagaries, maintained with consistently high character of her work. Edith Speare, Aubrey's critical sister-in-law Clara, effective; Joseph Kilgour, the moral that love is the key to happiness in every family crisis.

BUSTER KEATON SCORES HIT IN WAR COMEDY

By LEO GAFFNEY.

Raising a blank and impolite countenance to a lively page in American history Buster Keaton gives the signal for explosive laughter by driving a wheezy locomotive over the Civil War in "The General" at the Loew's State. To make it more interesting, of course, incidents of the story seems, are hung upon an actual episode of one Captain Andrews, a Northern soldier, who stole a freight train from under the noses of the Confederates and drove it back to the Union lines.

Buster Keaton

In the film there is also a Captain Anderson and an abducted zeppeline, but there is also the comic engineer of Southern sympathies who plays chase and, after the most historical series of adventures, finally retrieves the prize, thereby achieving great personal distinction, a girl and a classy uniform.

Most of the footage is devoted to the record high chase of "The General," that being the name of the disputed locomotive. The spectacle of Keaton persisting with dogged bewilderment in his wild journey far into the enemy territory supplies unflagging interest for the audience and a succession of breathless escapes that furnish a plethora of risibles on their own account.

There is one especially irresistible stunt, it is the star's discovery of a mortar mounted for railroad transportation. Practically hitchhiking on he is ready to fire when the untilled muzzle swings downward, thus pointing straight at Buster! The miraculous escape—and the big laugh—is provided by a sharp curve in the track that sends the charge to its intended target.

The girl in the case is Marian Mack, who must toil hard for art in a succession of much misunderstandings in the rain and all the other discomforts of that make up this delirious joyride.

The stage show at the State is led by Ted Landry and his Jolly Syncopators.

DANCERS HEAD ENTERTAINING KEITH BILL

There is an excellent bill at Keith's this week. Will Ahern and his sister, Gladys, put on a rare singing and dancing act with a little rope spinning and the audience sure did like their work.

Harry Carroll and his company of twelve in "The Dancing Derby" entertained with pleasing singing and dancing numbers.

One of the best acts of the show was Yoke and King in "The Old Family Tin Type." Their comedy and songs had the audience very nearly in hysterics.

Jacques Renard and his Lido Venice Orchestra in their first and exclusive vaudeville appearance, played some very entertaining numbers.

Jack Mitchell and Eileen Dave, dancers in "Hokum A La Class" were also pleasantly received.

Harry Smith and Jack Strong, songsters, the two Harlequins, contortionists, and Duncan's Collies, canine actors, rounded out the bill.

$28,648 WEEK'S RECEIPTS OF SHOW IN NEW YORK

As an eloquent contradiction to the plea that sex plays prosper best in hard times, the interesting public demands them comes the report of the actual receipts attained by the 5 performances last week of George C. Tyler production, "Trelawney of the 'Wells,'" at A. L. Erlanger's New Amsterdam Theatre in New York.

The actual figures for the week are $28,648. This is claimed to be the largest gross business ever played to in 5 performances in New York for a dramatic attraction at the prices charged. That this is a revival of a play written by A. W. Pinero is more than 25 years ago makes more brilliant the record.

Delightful apartments of every description and every location are offered for rent in the Herald Ads every day. Classifications 93 and 97.

VETS WELCOME OLD FRIENDS

War veterans at the West Roxbury Hospital welcomed two old friends when Sandy Chapman and Jim Murray went out there to do their stuff for the boys. Many of them had met Sandy when he was doing work for the Knights of Columbus during the war in France, while few of them had failed to see before Jim Murray in his "letter carrier act."

Today the phone at No. 7 Bullfinch street, Jim Murray's home address, No. 2034-M Roxbury, is ringing merrily with veterans or those who want to renew their old friendship.

LILLIAN GISH IN NEW ROLE

Lillian Gish in "The Scarlet Letter" is the screen attraction at Loew's Orpheum. She is seen as the tragic "Hester Prynne" of Nathaniel Hawthorne's famous story of the Puritan girl who was forced to wear a letter of shame through life for shielding the man she loved. Mae Gish contributes notable work as the ill-fated heroine.

Her sweetheart is played by Lars Hanson, Swedish star, whose debut in American pictures gives much promise. The supporting cast includes Karl Dane, Henry B. Walthall and Marcelle Corday.

Jack Wilson, Broadway comedian, heads an entertaining vaudeville bill with his "Nonsensical Revue." He is assisted by Warner Gault, Beth Miller and Winnie Ward. Bob Marks and Ethel present a humorous act called "Crossroads," and Marcus Sloan and Carleton Bruce, in a comedy and dance offering, are exceedingly clever. Other acts are Kenny and Hollis, ventriloquists; marvels; Three Collegians and Hori and Company.

SACHA GUITRY TO PLAY IN 'MOZART' AT OPERA

Immediately following the current opera engagement, Sacha Guitry and Yvonne Printemps will appear at the Boston Opera House in "Mozart," a play with music by Guitry.

It is a story in three acts with the locale during about 1778, a period when Mozart (Yvonne Printemps), returns to Paris to make the first of his conquests. The engagement begins next Monday.

EARL CARROL'S VANITIES IN HUB NEXT WEEK

Earl Carroll's "Vanities" will take possession of the Shubert beginning next Monday.

The original Broadway company is pretty much intact and includes Joe Cook, droll monologist and versatile fame; the Avon Comedy Four with Jimmy Dooley, Frankie Heath and Smith and Dale, and the traditional endowments of youth and beauty in the chorus line.

NEW PLAY SEEN AT REPERTORY

Polite drama set in the official atmosphere of a British post in Africa is the new offering this week at the Repertory. This is the first time that "Tornado," the joint work of Edward Knoblock and Anthony Blake, has been staged anywhere.

"Tornado" is a nice-oldfire drama portrayed in typical Repertory rolling room style in a torrid and colorful atmosphere. There is conflict, but it is mostly mental and some of that not too clearly expressed.

The betrayal of the love accused by a native guide nearly causes a scandal, which is avoided only by the murder of this native by another for a similar offense of wife-stealing. But the tornado passes and things go on as before, presumably. The play is a bit of dramatic irony, which has merits not too perfectly brought out, considering the fact that two heads—and one, at least, already well known as a playwright—should have had a hand in preparing a stage pot.

Ruth Taylor has the most adequate portrayal of the mental tornado which involves the three principal characters. Henry Jewett plays the unsuspecting husband who suddenly towers with rage, and Guy Phillips incites the sympathy of the audience with his characterization of the romantic underling. Louis Leon Hall plays the villainous native with all the gusto that the role offers.

"LE MAIRE'S AFFAIRS" OPENS AT THE TREMONT

The musical revue, "Le Maire's Affairs" opened its Boston engagement at the Tremont last night, filling the house to the last available seat.

The stars of the performance were Ted Lewis, Sophie Tucker and Lester Allen, of whom were received with considerable enthusiasm.

"Le Maire's Affairs" will be reviewed in Tuesday's Evening American.

Wants to Fight Ready for Action | Hurt by Dempsey Cripple Two Weeks

Who will get the first chance to knock me off the fistic throne?

I don't know—and at this moment no one does. The elimination tournament that Tex Rickard is staging perhaps will be the determining factor. Delaney, Sharkey, Maloney, Dempsey—one of that quartet seems a certainty to face me in September. It is immaterial to me which man steps out from the other corner. For if I can't whip the best of that group I don't deserve to be champion

And certainly, if I cannot be champion in fact, I do not want to be champion in name.

The mystery man of the "Big Four" is Jack Dempsey. [illegible] has committed himself definitely concerning either retirement or a "comeback" effort. Some reports have it that he will announce very soon a ruling [illegible] to fight this way [illegible]

[illegible] throwing up his gloves for the last time [illegible] to return to the fistic arena. [illegible] that the days of his greatness are done and that [illegible] convinced him that he is on a [illegible] further punishing himself.

[illegible] statements of experts that Dempsey [illegible] opening when I met him [illegible] I just [illegible] never had to face [illegible] the height of my career.

Practically all of [illegible] read, and practically every [illegible] heard, stressed that Dempsey was depending [illegible] punch with his fists in that fight. [illegible] going to start an investigation to find out whether a [illegible] anvils into my body and it was [illegible] Dempsey hit me with in the Africa style in the fourth round when I [illegible]

Dempsey's Mighty Fists Had Power of Anvils

[illegible] in the fourth, well everybody saw that. But I also [illegible] He aimed to [illegible] succeeded in getting [illegible] part [illegible] and out of the way. But I couldn't escape [illegible] it was [illegible] for a second or two after it landed I thought he had driven his fist clean through my head.

[illegible] punch that it ripped off the membrane INSIDE my throat. Blood started to come. I bled all through the rest of the [illegible] mostly ready knew because I swallowed it rather than let it trickle out.

For 36 hours after that fight it was impossible for me to drink water for longer than that I could not eat solid food. For more than ten days my throat pained from the hurting power of that single blow

The [illegible] knows I was hit in the throat. It was a spectacular [illegible] which [illegible] couldn't miss seeing. But somehow, some [illegible] that Dempsey was depending [illegible] punch with his fists. Nobody after the battle put any emphasis on that. Either they didn't see those punches or they were so short, and [illegible] that they didn't appear [illegible] didn't cause any damage.

Suffered Intense Pain After Tussle With Jack

[illegible] weeks after that fight my body was [illegible] and I could take shadow [illegible] of those blows. And for [illegible] afterward my stomach was so great [illegible] and had to—

[illegible] All that pain came not from any [illegible] but from [illegible] were created by the crushing [illegible] on his fist six and eight times [illegible] that [illegible] for two months.

[illegible] that [illegible] never was a second in all those [illegible] when I want I felt a use to the fact that [illegible] and [illegible] with one of us had [illegible] but [illegible] make up my judgment [illegible] upon the canvas.

To the watching crowd on that rain spattered September night, Dempsey's punching power perhaps seemed gone. But to me it was not. For in the very first round he crashed a short left into my body and I knew that the old power and the far famed paralyzing force was still there.

[illegible] I [illegible] from a fraction of a second I did dare to let [illegible] Dempsey could upset—even once. For [illegible] and the weight of his body be [illegible] me. I knew I must keep off that—and the great danger. So I just kept poking him off balance. I kept jabbing him off his toes whenever [illegible] and I hit him—and I kept him on the [illegible]

Never Allowed Dempsey to Set for His Punches

[illegible] I [illegible] But [illegible] I mean he [illegible] I knew the great [illegible] of that—and [illegible] I knew [illegible] I [illegible] I [illegible] I

Y. M. C. A. Quits Olympic Body

New York, Feb. 8.—The Young Men's Christian Association has withdrawn from membership in the Olympic body because of the methods of the Amateur Athletic Union.

This action was forecast recently when the Y. M. C. A. protested about the necessity of having its representatives in the International Y. M. C. A. athletic championships at Copenhagen, Denmark, next July, approved by the A. A. U.

The Y. M. C. A. is the fifth organization to withdraw from the American Olympic Association, the others being the United States National Amateur Athletic Federation, Navy, National Collegiate A. A. and Western Conference.

Your pipe can be a cheer or a chore

IT DEPENDS on what you feed it. Put it on a regular ration of Prince Albert and it will yield you pleasure, without stint or limit. "Never," you will say, "has the old pipe tasted so good." There isn't the ghost of a doubt about it. Just try it!

As you open the tidy red tin, close your eyes and drink-in that rich, rare aroma. You can hardly wait to get the taste of tobacco that smells as good as that. Then the big moment: You load up and light up. That's Prince Albert, Men, prime favorite of veteran smokers.

Cool as a magistrate fixing a fine. Sweet as the news that you won't have to pay it. Mild as a wifely rebuke for having spent too much on her birthday present. Mild, yet with that full tobacco body that satisfies your smoke-taste to the limit. A smoke!

Buy yourself a tidy red tin of P. A. and give your pipe a chance to deliver capacity joy. No matter how settled you appear to be on a smoke-program, try Prince Albert. Millions of pipe-happy men declare that no other tobacco is like it. You'll say so.

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

UNLESS you taste Granger Rough Cut in your pipe, the price may mislead you. And unless you know the price, you may miss another point; we sincerely believe it is the greatest pipe tobacco value obtainable today. .

So the long and short of it is this—the practical, inexpensive packing explains the price; and the tobacco can talk for itself once it gets in your pipe.

THIS SCOURGE WAS DRAGGING HIM DOWN

ALL-BRAN gave him new lease on life when it checked constipation

No matter how chronic constipation has become—no matter how far up hope of relief has gone—Mr. Williams' cheery message:

"I am on the down-grade. Never had any sickness, but I sure have been troubled with constipation. I make my mind to get relief, but did not get it. So here I am, your ALL-BRAN has made a friend for life. I am now 72 years old and am enjoying good health for a man of my age. L. C. Williams, Ky."

ALL-BRAN supplies the bulk to relieve constipation. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Ready to eat. Fine in cooking. Sold and served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Recipes on package

WORCESTER SALT

Best for Table Use— Best for Cooking.

THE first fine salt produced in America was Worcester Salt.

Fact, the purest, whitest and most satisfactory salt that money can buy is Worcester Salt.

Back in the days when fairs were in favor, Worcester led the field in the number of gold medals and blue ribbons awarded.

Now, as then, Worcester leads because it is the best by every scientific test.

GIVE WISELY OR NOT AT ALL FOR GOOD CAUSES

In large cities there may be some truth in the statement that people are [illegible] their own business and [illegible] to give to charity. There is a great deal to be said for the man who gives liberally if there were sure the money would be spent wisely. Is that excuse for selfishness the true spirit of giving is lost. Don't give foolishly, but give freely for a good cause.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

NOTHING gives a girl such an inferiority complex as to have a man kiss her, just ONCE.

* * *

The best way to keep the moth out of the clothes, is to USE them occasionally.

* * *

The old-fashioned girl of twenty-five was still dreaming of her golden future; now the only comfort a girl of that age enjoys is in remembering that she was once a flapper.

* * *

The college sheik looks as though he would some day grow up to be the kind of husband who holds the ladder while his wife puts up the portieres, and kisses away her tears while she peels the onions.

No man is less able to "explain" his old love-letters than he who wrote them. In fact he won't even BELIEVE he wrote them, until his wife shows him the signature—and then he's half inclined to think it's a forgery.

Marriage is a sort of tireless cooker, in which the toughest, if they remain there long enough, sometimes become sweet and tender—and the tenderest often become hard-boiled.

The "good hater" went out of fashion along with bustles, corsets, tight shoes and eternal punishment. Even lovers break off an engagement politely and good humoredly, these days, and turn each other over to the lucky rival, with a sigh of relief at what they have escaped.

Powerful Skin Remedy Discovered

Dries Up Eczema, Barbers' Itch and Skin Eruptions. Must Give Results in 7 Days or Money Back

This wonderful surgeon's prescription now known all over America as Moone's Emerald Oil, is so efficient in the treatment of skin diseases that the itching of eczema often stops with one application.

A few applications and the most persistent cases of eczema often are healed never to return.

Moone's Emerald Oil is safe and pleasant to use and it is so powerfully antiseptic and deodorant that even odors arising from ulcers, gangrene and cancer are instantly killed.

Moone's Emerald Oil is the original bottle is dispensed by pharmacists. All druggists always have Moone's Emerald Oil on hand.

Stop It

with hot lemonade

DRINK a glass of hot lemonade after a warm bath. Then go to bed under plenty of covers. You'll perspire freely—but that is good for you.

In the morning you'll feel much better. Nine times out of ten the cold will be gone if you fight it this way just as soon as that first sneeze or chill appears.

Prevent possible pneumonia, or the "flu," in this simplest, surest, safest way.

Thus you save whole days of sickness and their cost.

Just squeeze the juice of one lemon in a glass or cup of hot water—add honey or sugar if you wish.

Always ask for California lemons—they are the tart, juicy and practically seedless kind. Best for hot lemonade.

MEDBURY SAYS---BY JOHN P. MEDBURY

TAKING a tip from the government alcohol crusade, the Anti-Spoon League is trying to stop kissing by putting poison in cosmetics. It won't be long before death will lurk on every pair of lips.

OSCULATION is now dangerous physically as well as financially.

WITH deadly rouge on the market, a man would be afraid to kiss his own wife even if he wanted to.

NO husband would get a thrill out of committing suicide at home.

HE'D rather be poisoned by a strange pair of lips.

IT'S only a question of time before young people will be spooning in funeral parlors.

A COUPLE will kiss each other and then sit down and wait for the undertaker.

ONE fellow says that poisoned cosmetics can't interfere with his love-making. He's going to carry a can of paint remover.

HELL continue kissing the girls if he has to take the rouge off with a blow torch.

THERE'S only one thing that can keep hips from spooning and she's not in town much.

INSTEAD of poison, some of the manufacturers are putting onions in their lip sticks.

BUT that's nothing. When a man's in love, even garlic isn't going to discourage him.

ROUGE might just as well be daubed on, because once a man kisses a girl he's gone anyway.

LOVE makes the world go 'round and if women would stop spooning, the men would quit going around.

IF kissing was against the law in this town, there'd be plenty of bootleggers to take care of the transients.

WHILE there have been no casualties as yet, it won't be long before couples will be doing their kissing at the board of health.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

WITHIN this valley's verdant cup far, far from worldly ways, the simplest thoughts and deeds make up the burden of our days. Our humble tasks recurrent round begins as last stars wane, we feed our flocks, we till our ground, we garner in our grain. And so the seasons come and pass as calm tides ebb and flow; from budding leaf to withered grass the years' swift changes go. We know but little of the ways where greatness's steps are set, so tranquil moving are our days, so free from vain regret. Besides this quiet valley's streams, within this blest retreat, it is as though men walk in dreams, forever calm and sweet. Nor could all prizes rich and sizable of Earth's most splendid ways, tempt any dweller here to change the burden of his days.

SHABBY SHOES

To blacken shabby brown shoes, a mixture of a little ordinary ammonia and a half-pint of cold water is effective. Sponge the shoes with it, then with a little shoe ink, and leave to dry thoroughly before polishing in the usual way.

FOR Sour Stomach

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Hereafter instead of soda take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in cup any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach and relief will come instantly.

Better Than Soda

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. Besides, it neutralizes acid, gently urges this souring waste from the system without purging. It is far more pleasant to take than soda.

Try a 25c Bottle

Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Employe Ownership Helps 50-Year Dividend Record

By B. C. FORBES

CHICAGO, FEB. 3.—It has been a relief to get out of Wall Street's pessimistic atmosphere and to rub shoulders with Chicago's leading men of affairs.

CHARLES PIEZ, who won fame as a driving force at the head of the United States Shipping Board during the war, is president of a company which has found mutual satisfaction of never having missed payment of a dividend in the last half century, the Link-Belt Company.

This employs 4,500 men in its plants in Chicago, Indianapolis, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Toronto. Mr. Piez, who is rounding out his thirty-eighth year with the company and his twentieth year as president, said, when questioned about business conditions:

B. C. Forbes

"Last year we did the biggest volume in our long history and the results were highly satisfactory, notwithstanding that we were not at any time had any great amount of advance orders on hand. If we come within 10 per cent. of last year's record, we will be well satisfied this year. The United States cannot live on peaks all the time. Our country has had a very easy time all along since 1921."

When asked to what he attributed his company's extraordinary record, Mr. Piez modestly replied:

"No less than 40 per cent. of our stock is held by active members of our organization, and to the fact that a large number of our workers have been stockholders for a good many years I attribute a large measure of our success. Our men are genuinely interested in their work."

In view of this, I will interest other executives to learn the basis on which Mr. Piez believes the principles of stock ownership should be extended to employes. He says:

"In the first place, stock should not be distributed unless it has an established earning capacity over a period of years.

"In the second place, the opportunity to buy stock should be limited, first, to men who have shown ability to carry responsibility, from assistant foreman up; second, to those showing inventive ability; third, to both office and plant workers showing more than average ability; fourth, to men in the shop who, through intelligent and loyal service, have given rather more than they have received in wages alone.

"Finally there should be some method through which the corporation can purchase back the stock when the employe leaves."

Will other employers please copy?

LAWRENCE WHITING, who, at 37, is the founder and head of several banks as well as of his own banking firm and who is the head of the Indiana Limestone Company, the largest quarry enterprise in the world, and head, also, of the Marshall Field Furniture Mart building, the largest commercial building in the world, said:

"Building in Chicago is greater this year than it was last year. Although speculative building has dwindled, Chicago is undertaking quite a number of tremendously large structures, both private and civic."

C. U. WILLIAMS, president of the Williams Oil-O-Matic Corporation, expects this year to double last year's production of 20,000 units. Those who voiced a hopeful attitude regarding business prospects included Fred Rawson, chairman of the Lake Torpedo Boat Company; G. Herd of the Chicago & Alton Railroad, John Hovey of the Fairbanks-Morse Company, Oscar Mayer, president of the National Meat Institute; Edward Hines, lumber magnate; President Bateman of the Trans-Continental Freight Company; Colonel Howard, president of the Chicago Great Western Railroad, and John Clark, president of the Midwest Oil Company.

Advice from R. J. Fiore to Housewives

Stop:

We don't stop washing our clothes until absolutely sanitary.

Look:

We look always for the best, to wash your clothes, which gives you comfort and also best.

Listen:

Be careful where you have your laundry done, that will save you money, but sickness, too.

If it is understood as I explained. Stop-Look-&-Listen.

All housewives the moment they hear an auto pass near their houses, they leave everything behind thinking of nothing but to save their children's lives. Do the same with your laundry, which is more dangerous. Try now you get more, pay less and you never regret.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to reserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.

2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each state, but no state to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.

3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.

4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.

5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

This Old State a Bee Hive

Many Irons in the Fire

The gentlemen who make all these sad after-dinner speeches about the woeful state of New England industry will find little if any encouragement in advance reports from the Census Bureau telling of its biennial survey of manufactures of the year 1925.

Experts of the Census Bureau have no axes to grind, nothing to sell, nothing to put over, are interested in FACTS and in facts alone.

Dispatches from Washington begin with the declaration that Massachusetts is the "recognized centre" of the textile and boot and shoe industries and then proceed to a consideration of 57 other industries which, we are told, were "picked at random."

Take furniture, for example.

The Bay State is the SIXTH largest centre of the furniture industry. Our output of furniture in 1925 was valued at $33,638,835!

We lead in three of the 57 industries "picked at random," rank second in 11, third in 7, fourth in 15, fifth in 7, sixth in 4, seventh in 3, ninth in 2, twelfth in 1 and twenty-second in another.

Massachusetts LEADS—

In the manufacture of blacking stains and dressings; combs and hairpins, other than metal and rubber; and cutlery and edge tools.

Massachusetts ranks SECOND among the States—

In the preparation of waste from cotton or other fibre; the manufacture of screw machinery products; the making of gold leaf; manufacture of cordage and twine, jute and linen goods; engraving and diesinking; silversmithing and manufacturing silverware; manufacture of optical goods; making straw hats; sewing machines, cases and attachments; manufacture of jewelry and instrument cases; manufacture of suspenders, garters and other elastic goods.

THIRD—

In the manufacture of musical instruments; rubber goods, other than tires and tubes and boots and shoes; printing and publishing music; manufacturing chemical fire extinguishers; manufacture of envelopes; bookbinding and blankbook making; manufacturing plated ware.

The Bay State ranks FOURTH—

In hair work; making regalia, badges and emblems; making mattresses and bed springs; photo engraving not done in printing establishments; turning and carving wood; making professional and scientific instruments; shipbuilding; making mirrors; making pocketbooks; making confections and salting nuts; making brushes; making hand stamps, stencils and brands; stereotyping and electrotyping; making ethyl alcohol; and making rag carpets and rugs.

FIFTH—

In establishments engaged primarily in making trunks, suitcases and bags; the manufacture of stationery and art goods; window shades and fixtures; scales and balances; toys, games and playground equipment; paper bags; and surgical appliances.

We rank SIXTH—

In production of furniture; making of soaps; manufacture of labels and tags; making steam and other packing; pipe, boiler covering and gaskets.

SEVENTH—

In the making of carbonated, fruit and cereal beverages; artificial limbs; lithographing.

EIGHTH—

In making motor vehicles, bodies and parts; making lime; and making aluminum products.

NINTH—

In the making of caskets, coffins, burial cases and morticians' goods, as well as in the manufacture of carriages, wagons, sleds, sleighs and materials for the same.

One Man Against 300,000

TION ROOM AT NIAGARA FALLS. ONE-MAN CONTROL.

It took the labor of three hundred thousand men to build the Great Pyramids. Tens of thousands died under the lash. But Pharaoh needed his magnificent tomb, something worthy of the kind of mummy he intended to be, so the hundreds of thousands sweated and groaned, pulling huge stones over the sand, dragging them up the slopes to the tops of the Pyramids, afterwards carting away the sand.

In your imagination, compare those tens of thousands toiling in the quarries, dragging stones over the descris, literally BURNED UP at their tasks, with this one man sitting at his desk in his shirt sleeves, cool and comfortable, heated by the electricity that he is controlling.

He sits in what is called "the direction room" of the Niagara Falls power station. He, ONE man, controls the vast power of the Falls.

He directs the current here or there.

And this man, by throwing a switch, could have lifted in a moment the rocks around which thousands of the old Egyptians toiled, like ants dragging a dead caterpillar.

We have made wonderful progress in science, IN POWER, in the conquest and use of Nature's forces.

But unfortunately the progress has been mainly in science, in machinery, not so much in the human [illegible]

WHEN ROYALTY GETS INTO A QUARREL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

It is said that Queen Marie and Prince Carol had a falling out recently.

They were at the house of the Queen's friend in Paris and the Queen met the Prince by appointment there. The Queen said that Madame Lupescu must go just as Zizi Lambrino had disappeared. The Bucharest court would not stand for a king not living with his legal wife.

She told Carol that his private feelings must be overruled by his knightly dignity. He retorted:

"Do you think it is queenly to have your hair shingled in a Los Angeles bob?"

So they had a falling out over the cut of the Queen's hair. This would not be of much importance, but it is over such small things that revolutions and the like occur.

To think of men killing each other by wholesale because two people fall out over the way a woman should cut her hair is rather startling.

It shows how much the lives of the common people are worth compared with royal foibles.

Unfortunately, wars do not occur over major differences or about things worth while, but it is often some little spark that lights them.

The fact that millions of men lose their lives and millions of dollars' worth of property were destroyed because an insignificant duke was killed in Sarajevo was appalling.

If the people were the ones who decided when they should go to war there would be no more wars, but the trouble is that wars grow out of the quarrels of their betters and they are often about insignificant trifles.

FIREPROOF BEACON HILL?

IN connection with SENATOR ALFRED M. BESSETTE'S proposition to have the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in are its property against fire, AUT. F. HILL, Back Bay engineer, suggests making all State buildings fireproof. "A fireproof State House does not burn," he says.

LONG TERM WORKERS.

It seems hardly possible that any corporation in the world can surpass the United Shoe Company's achievement of having 332 employes honored at a dinner to celebrate jointly a quarter of a century of service. PRESIDENT EDWIN PERKINS BROWN indeed has reason to be proud of workers with such a record of service. The gift of ten shares of United Shoe common to each guest was certainly close to a record in generosity. This stock sells on the Boston Stock Exchange as this is written at $51.75 a share.

SAYING LIGHT.

If many BOSTONIANS were told that there was a time, each day, when WASHINGTON, BOYLSTON, TREMONT and other known streets were as dark and gloomy-looking as the most remote country lane they would probably express doubt. But it's a fact. Every morning, about 6, all electric street lights go out and from then until the sun pokes its head over the Atlantic Boston's streets are in total darkness, save for a light here and there from an all-night restaurant. Get up early some day and take a look.

COMMISSARY

Feeding pigeons and squirrels in the GRANARY BURIAL GROUND on TREMONT STREET is the pastime of a "mysterious woman in black." She appears near the centre of the graveyard with a bag of broken bread and gives a peculiar whistle which attracts attention of the squirrels. They hurry toward her from their nests in trees. Next she utters a chirp and immediately is surrounded by a flock of pigeons. The woman is said to be a descendant of a Revolutionary soldier.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

YOU'VE met them—

The lads and lassies who are willing to bust out with a confession of their sins at any time. Are they ashamed? They claim to be. According to them their souls are torn by spiritual torments, but you'd never guess it from the glow on their faces or the wag of their eager tongues.

No canary ever wiggled or twitted more ecstatically in its bath than they do whilst confessing their shortcomings.

Nothing pleases them more than to sit down for a nice, long afternoon's discussion of their weaknesses, their complexes, their secret ailments and public failures.

One or two they drag forth Exhibits A-B-C-D, etc., and display them with all the pride of a mother exhibiting her first-born.

The "Temper" Type.

"Yes, I know I have a dreadful temper," they surge. "You can't know what an affliction it is, dear. Why, it's almost impossible to live with me sometimes. The least little thing sets me off. I've lost the most wonderful positions through my temper—and the dearest friends. Of course I just break my heart over it, but it doesn't do me a bit of good."

"Oh, you don't know how I envy you—you're so energetic," cries the next one. "I'd just give anything in the world to be energetic the way you are. Ever since I can remember, I've wanted to Do Things—in Amount to Something—but I've never been able. It's that terrible laziness of mine. Honest, it feels just as if I was weighed down with lead sometimes. Oh, it must be wonderful to WANT to work."

And so they go down the list. Egotism, cowardice, dishonesty, foolishness, they exhibit them all as though they were the royal jewels.

Looking for Advice.

Then you're supposed to advise them. Of course, being human, you want to advise them. And they bank on that fact. They know they couldn't possibly grab off two or three perfectly good hours of your time under any other pretext. But if they give you a chance to save their souls, it's a cinch you can't resist the temptation.

So you dive in and try to save their souls. You tell them how easily their faults might be overcome and what splendid things they could do if they would only come them. You appeal to their pride—you get excited and wring a few insults at them for their own good.

And then, having shot the works, what happens?

Do they go out healed of their weakness, cleansed of their shame, to perform strong, worthy deeds?

No, my dear, they do NOT.

They go out strutting, just as if they'd come from Thanksgiving dinner. For haven't they told what Low Dogs they are? And doesn't that prove they have fearless, honest souls? So, who's got anything on them? Nobody at all.

Any some day I'm going to murder one of them with my two little, frail hands. Then maybe I'll get life. Or maybe I'll get a dandy contract with the movies.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

A man must either imitate the vicious or hate them.—Montaigne.

He who is not ready today will be less so tomorrow. —Ovid.

It is foolish to fear what you cannot avoid. —Syrus.

Wisdom is only in truth.—Goethe.

What makes life dreary is the want of motive. —George Eliot.

What ignorance there is in human minds. —Ovid.

Music revives the recollections it would appease. —Mme. de Sinel.

You believe that easily, which you hope for earnestly.—Terence.

Nature revolves, but man advances.—Young.

Fear that makes faith may break faith. —Swinburne.

What you see, yet cannot see over, is as good as infinite.—Carlyle.

Reputations, like beavers and cloaks, shall last some people twice the time of others.—Douglas Jerrold.

The people never give up their liberties but under some delusion. —Burke.

Love is ever the beginning of knowledge, as fire is of light. —Carlyle.

Nature is a mutable cloud which is always and never the same. —Emerson.

Ignorance never settles a question. —Disraeli.

Looking Up and Down

By Garrett P. Serviss.

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Subjects of Popular Interest.

"Please tell me why it is that we look up at the planets, and yet, if they have people, they do not look down at us. B. H."

THIS question involves a good deal more philosophy than may appear on the surface. First, "up" and "down" are words of only local application. Not only does every planet have its own up and down, but so also does every side of the same planet.

You carry your zenith and your nadir with you wherever you go. The direction of up and down depends upon gravitation. "Up" is away from the centre of gravity, and down is toward that centre, and the centre of gravity in a globe like the earth practically corresponds with its centre of figure.

As a general proposition we may say that on every planet "up" means away from the planet's centre in any direction, while "down" means toward that centre from any direction. Thus there is no "top" to up, but there is a "bottom" to down, the bottom being the centre of gravity of the particular planet concerned.

It is a peculiarity of men—shared by trees—to stand erect against gravity. Thus, up is overhead and down is underfoot. If you were on Venus instead of on the earth the local law would be the same; down would be toward the centre of gravity of Venus and up would be toward the surrounding sky.

Thus, if you were there, you would look up to see the earth, while we at home were also looking up to see Venus. Our local "ups" would be more or less directly opposed to one another, except in the peculiar situation where we see that "up" on the earth corresponds with "up" on Venus when Venus is observed on the earth looks directly at Venus herself. Then a star seen nearly in line with the two planets would be "up" or overhead, for observers on both of them.

But let us consider the contradictions of our own terrestrial up and down. Think of a person standing on the side of the earth exactly opposite to you. The direction of his "up" is that of your "down," and vice versa. (Of course down ends at the centre of the earth, but mentally one may extend it indefinitely in the same direction.)

The line of up and down for people who are one-quarter of the earth's circumference away from you is at right angles to your own up-and-down line. A star overhead for you is on the horizon of them.
